

Building Planning Service

The first thing a congregation contemplating a building program needs to do is study the congregation's mission and ministry and their implications for building requirements. Then, it is appropriate for existing congregations to evaluate their existing building and location as well as for new congregations to plan a first unit and master plan. To assist in this process, the Building Planning Workbook and a Disciples Church Extension Fund staff consultation to assist in the evaluation of the workbook are available.

A Disciples Church Extension Fund General Consultation should precede this service.
